About the DARE programme

The DARE Fellowship Programme takes Danish medical students to the San Francisco Bay Area for ten months to receive hands-on training in clinical research. Participants are closely mentored by internationally recognised clinical researchers at some of America's finest academic institutions, UCSF and Stanford.

The programme is a partnership between the Lundbeck Foundation and Innovation Centre Denmark, based in Silicon Valley. This unique international partnership gives Danish medical students the opportunity to jumpstart their careers in medical research and entrepreneurship.

The DARE programme offers

- Fully-funded, 10-month fellowship programme in San Francisco, California, for five Danish medical students
- Comprehensive training in clinical research
- Training and collaboration with respected scientists from UCSF and Stanford University
- Highly supportive infrastructure, enabling students to accomplish their research and career goals
- Housing arrangement in San Francisco with fellow DARE students
