

The CV function in Pure

Right here your profile information will show in Pure. It will show your publications, activities, press releases and CVs.

New CVs can be produced by clicking the + sign (press the cross).

The CV won't be public before you tick the box "Publish" and click Save. You can always save a draft.

Curriculum and research description

Research areas

My primary field of research is teaching and learning in higher education. In that field, I'm currently working with two aspects: student meets study and the professionalisation of the university teacher.

Regarding student meeting study, I'm especially interested in interdisciplinarity – how is interdisciplinarity conceived in world of research, how is this concretised in the organisation (structure, teaching forms, cooperation internally and externally,...) of the studies and how is the interdisciplinarity viewed by the students?

As part of the professionalisation of the university teacher, I'm particularly interested in how the academics see themselves as professional teachers, how academic developers see the teachers as professionals and how the educational leaders view the professional teacher.

Additionally, I have for many years been doing research in science education with a special view to the concept of interest and children's/adolescents' interest in science – especially how this interest (or the lack of interest) affects the adolescents' choice of education.

Updates to Pure may occur that will render this guide out of date.

Note that your choice of browser and browser settings can affect what you see on your screen while working in Pure. Therefore, your screen might not look exactly like the screen dumps in this guide.

Public or Private CV

Public CVs are visible on your Public SDU profile, while the Private CV only can be seen in Pure.

It is not possible to change your status, once you have chosen it.

Despite of this you can pick the Public CV, but choose to wait with publishing it – in this case, it will not be visible at the website yet. (make this selection in case you are not done with the CV)

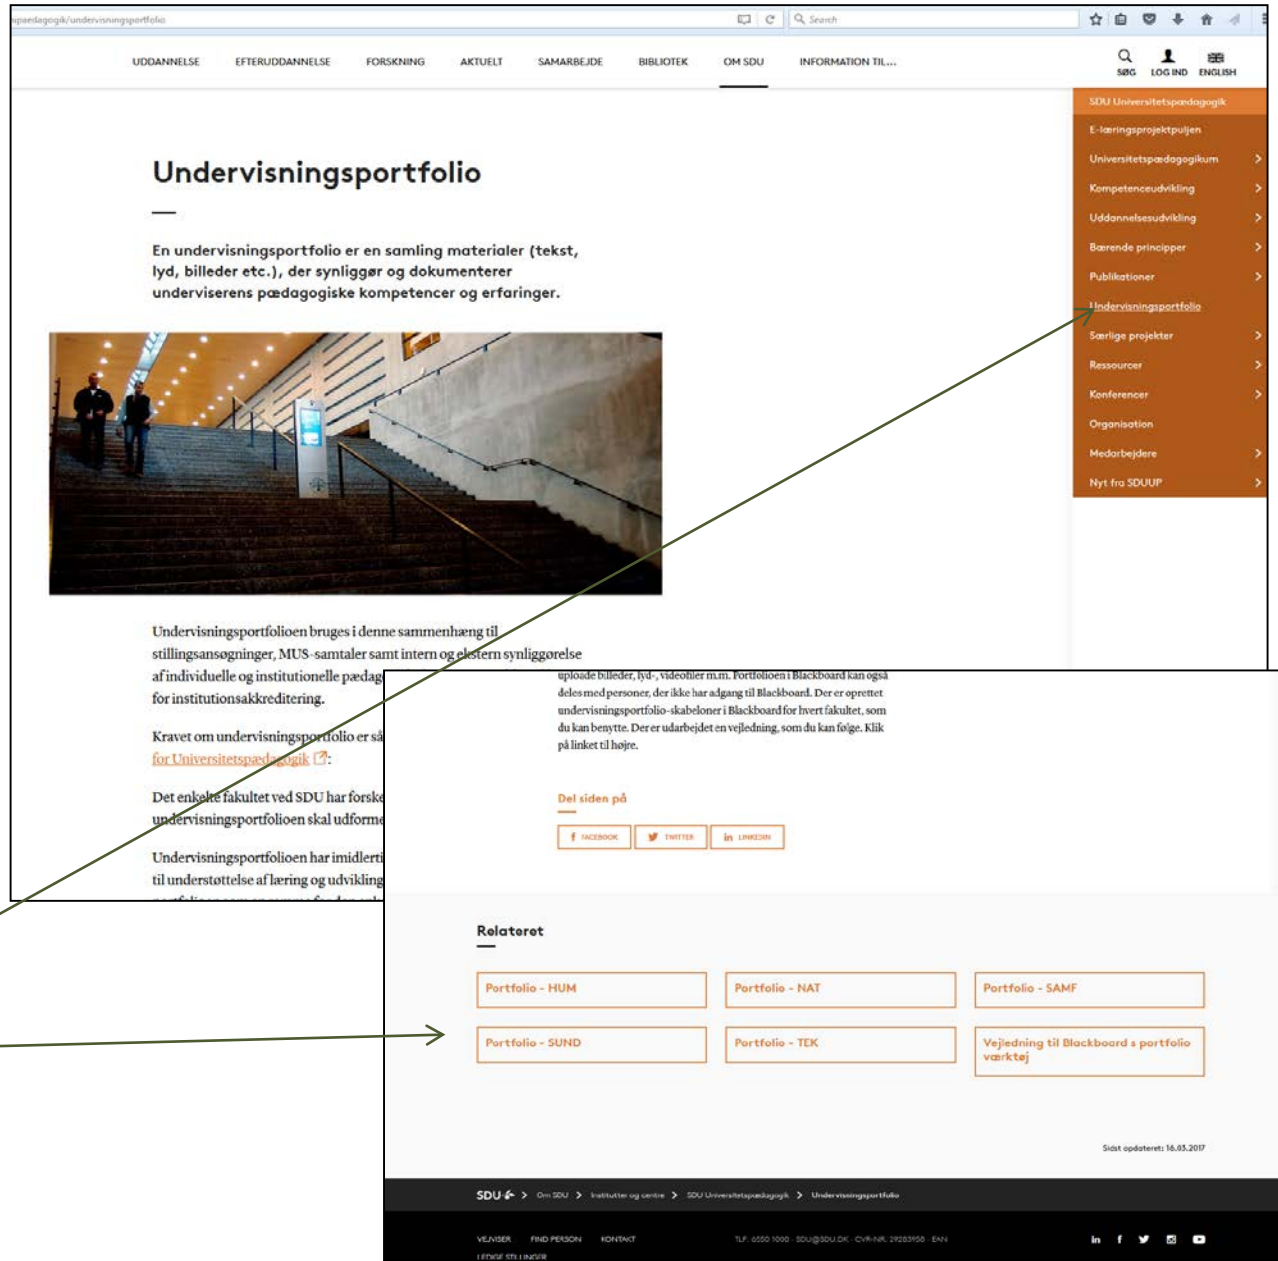

It is possible to create more than one Public CV. It is the CV which is first created, that is displayed on your public SDU profile.

Which information should be included in your Teacher CV?

SDU faculties have their own views on the content and format of Teaching CVs, which means each faculty has its own Teaching CV model.

At SDU Centre for Teaching and Learning website: www.sdu.dk/sduup you can get information and guidelines about CV content from your faculty. Click the Teacher Portfolio and scroll to the end of the page

Add information to the Teacher CV

Different information can be added automatically

Personal master data includes the organisational circumstances (sdu-email, organisational relations, phone number etc.)

The list from the module “Teaching” can be downloaded from Pure, just like elements from the module “Activities” – which are relevant regarding the Teacher Portfolio.

You can also create blank spaces with headlines and text, if you would prefer this.

Editing activities

There are different possibilities when it comes to selecting/deselecting

The maximum count refers to the number of activities, which should be visible (e.g. if you only want to show the 5 most recent activities).

Categories and types makes it possible to show only the teaching relevant activities (e.g. experience with supervision, guest lecture, involvement in colleague supervision or other relevant information).

A dynamic list means that the CV automatically gets an update, when a new activity is added to Pure (if it fits the criteria)

The screenshot shows the 'Settings for list' dialog box in the Pure system. The dialog is titled 'Settings for list' and has a close button in the top right corner. It is divided into several sections:

- Header: Contains two text input fields. The first is labeled 'Aktiviteter' and the second is labeled 'Activities'. Above the first field is a red Danish flag icon, and above the second is a red UK flag icon. A note above the fields says 'Fill in a header in order to insert a header right before the list'.
- Filters: Contains a 'Maximum count' dropdown menu set to 'All'.
- Types: Contains a table with two columns: 'Selected types' and 'Options'. The 'Selected types' column has a 'Remove all' button. The 'Options' column has an 'Add all' button. The table lists various activity types and their corresponding options.
- Year: Contains two dropdown menus labeled 'Beginning' and 'End'.
- Display: Contains a 'Format' dropdown set to 'Short', an 'Ordering' dropdown set to 'Start date', and a 'Select list style' dropdown set to 'No list style'. There is also a checkbox labeled 'Show type of content for each item in the list' which is currently unchecked.
- Dynamic/static list: Contains a text box with a yellow background and a warning message: 'This section is dynamic and will be automatically filled with any new content, as per the selections above. Making this section static will 'freeze' the content (with any selections made above applied), such that no content will be added automatically and you have some freedom to edit the section.'

Organizing your activities

If you would like to organize your activities (e.g. projects, supervision, exams, colleague supervision...) you simply have to add a section:

Then you will be able to:

- choose activities again (even if it says you have already added it),
- name the section something specific (e.g. "Experience in Supervision) and then
- choose which kind of activities, you would like to include (e.g. Internal and External Supervision).

The screenshot shows a list of activities on the left and an 'Add section' dialog box on the right. The activities listed are:

An 'Add section' button is located below the 'Vejledning' section. The dialog box on the right is titled 'Add section' and contains the following options:

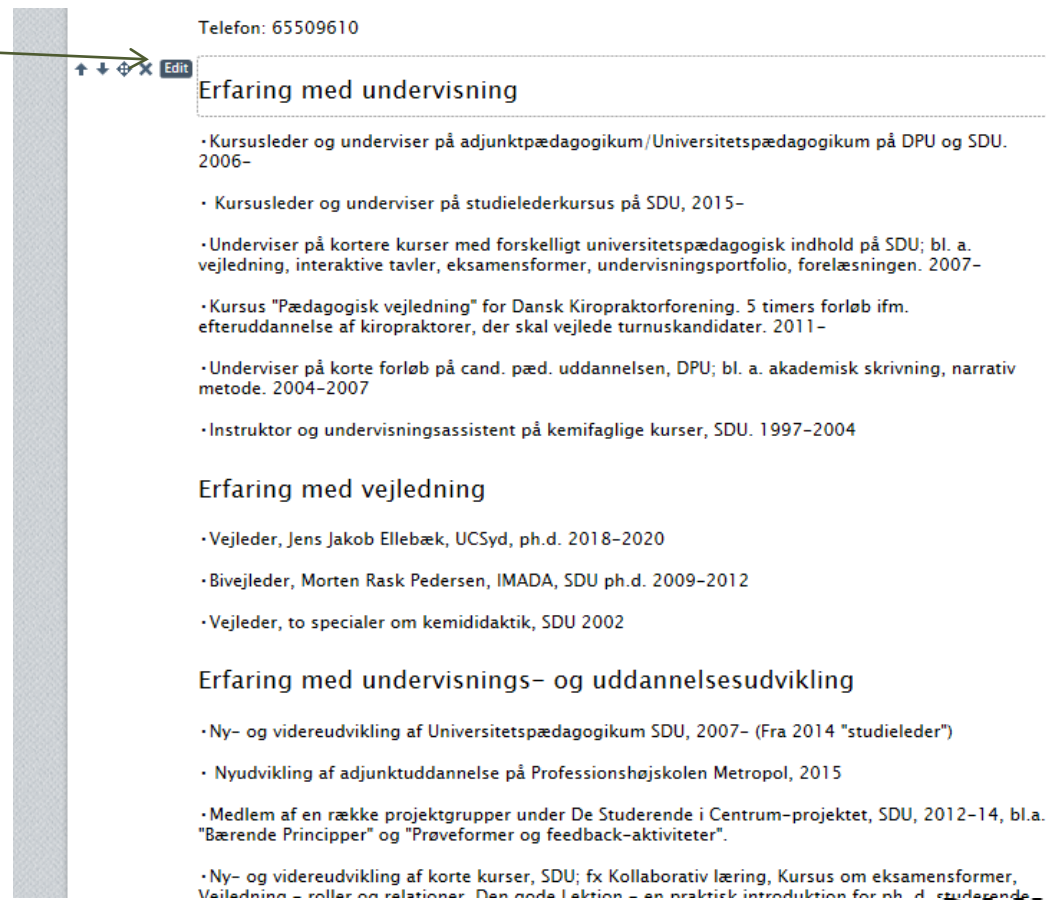

- Personal information
- Your personal profile from Pure
- Profile information
- List of your employments (4)
- Lists of your content from Pure
- Research outputs (49)
- Activities (158) Already added
- Teaching and supervision (1) Already added
- Text
- Heading
- Text section
- Periodic list

A 'Cancel' button is at the bottom right of the dialog box. Green arrows point from the text on the left to the 'Add section' button and the dialog box.

Editing information

To the left from the headline it is possible to edit the content (this includes lists). Hover the mouse on the headline and an editing-button will appear.

It is also possible to move the entire headline up or down – depending on how you would like it to look.
