Accreditation and certification

GlobalDenmark is accredited by Copenhagen University to teach academic communication in English to PhD students and senior researchers

GlobalDenmark is quality-certified with the University of East London's Quality Mark. This assures that our PhD courses comply with rigorous quality criteria on teaching methodology, teacher qualifications and course management.

About GlobalDenmark

Since 1985, we at GlobalDenmark have helped PhD students communicate their research results to a national and international audience. Over the past few years, more than 2,500 PhD students from universities across the country have participated in our two ECTS-accredited courses.

As a PhD student not only do you need to master your research area, you must also be able to communicate and present your research to an international audience. You will need to communicate, present and cooperate across cultural and linguistic barriers, and GlobalDenmark can help you succeed in that endeavour.
