

Title

Should we be reading fanfictions in school?

Student teacher

Name	Emma Freja B. Pedersen
Study	English

Introduction to class

Dear student,
have you ever heard about the literary genre “fanfiction”? Perhaps it’s unknown to you, perhaps you’ve read some, or maybe you’ve even written something yourself?

In this class, we will delve into this genre of literature, unknown or known to you: Fanfiction. We will examine what makes it such a popular genre to both read and write. We will look at both the reader’s and writer’s role, and why it can be intriguing to write your own. You will learn the terminology and theory associated with the topic, and together we will discuss and examine the genre, and even consider if there’s a need for it on the syllabus.

In the end, you will gather all your knowledge and try your hand at being a fanfiction writer.

Preparation for the students

Before our class together, I don’t expect you to prepare anything other than reading this introduction. I will introduce the topic and technical terms for you during class. So, you just need to be fresh for class, and I’m looking forward to meeting you!