

DaWS Early Career Grants 2020 – Call for Applications

The Danish Centre for Welfare Studies (DaWS) calls for applications for the DaWS early career grants 2020. To support academic careers of grant holders and foster international cooperation, we would like to invite up to 4 early career researchers for a research stay at the University of Southern Denmark in Odense.

Eligible candidates are advanced PhD students or scholars who finished their PhD within the last 6 years (excluding parental leave) in the broad field of welfare state research. Grant holders and DaWS faculty should have overlapping research interests, so that the stay is mutually inspiring and can lead to further collaboration. Contribution to the research and teaching activities of DaWS in the form of e.g. presentations or co-authorship is expected. Research stays should be a minimum of 2 weeks.

We offer:

- Grant of up to 20,000 DKK (ca. 2,600 Euro), depending on the length of the stay, travel distance and accompanying family members.
- Excellent working conditions with access to an own office space, library and integration into the research and teaching activities of DaWS.
- Mentoring by an assigned senior faculty member regarding the candidate's research and career prospects. Specifically, this may also entail discussing future collaboration in attracting postdoc funding.

Applications (in one PDF document) should include:

- Short presentation of how the candidate's research and DaWS will mutually benefit from the stay and which project and/or collaboration are proposed (max. 2 pages). It should also indicate the length and possible periods of the stay plus which DaWS member(s) might be a suitable mentor.
- CV.

Please send your applications to Bess Rogers: rogers@sam.sdu.dk. The deadline for applications is 1st of December 2019.
